The Experts in DevSecOps

POETA DIGITAL

DevSecOps, short for Development Security Operations, is an approach to software development that integrates security practices and principles into the entire software development lifecycle (SDLC). It aims to merge development (Dev), security (Sec), and operations (Ops) teams to collaboratively ensure that security considerations are prioritized and integrated throughout the software development process.

DevSecOps aims to strike a balance between development speed, operational efficiency, and security. By incorporating security into the development process from the outset, organizations can build more resilient and secure software systems.

What We Offer

Expertise

At Poeta, we have the crew for you. Carefully chosen and dedicated masters in HTML, CSS, JavaScript, jQuery, PHP, Python and more. Using our distributed team model, we will give you the best talent for your project regardless of geography.

Your A-Team

This custom team will have its own Product Owner that will run point for your project. We find you the best solution and update you on its status while being responsive to your plans and any questions and concerns you might have. Poeta will be there every step of the way.

Adaptability

So your project is starting to get up and running, so now you wonder if you need the whole team? Not to worry, our teams are designed to adjust to your changes and growth, so after you are up and running right away and have all the support you need, we can scale back to your needs just as easily.

Why is it important?

- Enhances security by integrating it throughout the development process, reducing vulnerabilities and cyber threats.
- Enables swift threat detection and response through automated testing and continuous monitoring.
- It is cost-efficient, preventing post-deployment fixes and minimizing legal and reputational risks.
- Supports agility and innovation, allowing rapid releases while maintaining security.
- Fosters collaboration, improving decision-making and a holistic security approach.
- Ensures compliance and governance, reducing regulatory risks.
- Builds customer trust by delivering secure products and safeguarding sensitive data.
- Enhances resilience and minimizes downtime during security incidents.
